

Aeschylus' Epitaph

Martin Robertson

Aeschylus, Euphorion's son of Athens, lies under this stone dead in Gela among the white wheatlands; a man at need good in fight
—witness the hallowed field of Marathon, witness the long-haired Mede.