

Martin Robertson

Blind

The blind girl's face, which never was composed before a looking-glass, learns a composure in the end no looking-glass can lend.