

Homage

Martin Robertson

Moonlight transfigures marble.

When I think of that beauty
I think of Richard Hughes.

I was not young, nor was he old,
but he had wisdom
I felt, good wisdom.

I sat contented at his feet on the midnight Acropolis listening among marble and moonlight.