

Summer

Martin Robertson

From every hedge lightly the rose scentless, ephemeral and wild prodigal to all passing throws the unstable beauty of a child.